

TO BEE SOW HAPPY FARM

Internship Opportunity

Interested in Learning about Farming & Greenhouses?

You will be discovering proper planting/propagation techniques working with medicinal botanicals. We will also be working outside during the Fall harvesting medicinal plants, drying them, and making herbal products. December will find you helping to plant the botanicals from seed readying them for the Spring shows (includes plant care and maintenance). Late February, early March seedlings will need to be transplanted into new containers preparing them for their last stage before going to market. January, February, and March there will be some outside work in the gardens, as weather permits, preparing soil for vegetable production. April seed planting begins in the greenhouse for summer produce. Late May we begin planting outdoors, as weather permits.

Ms. Camille Edwards, Farm Owner is a herbologist and President of the North Carolina Herb Association. She has written and taught classes for the NC BioBusiness BioNetwork College System

To BEE SOW HAPPY Farm is a small operation featuring a commercial-sized greenhouse. We have Blackberries, blueberries, medicinal herbs and produce. We also have a farm mascot, Miss Piggy Sue. She loves visitors!
